These Terms and Conditions apply to all reports issued by Diamond Analysing Centre "DAC".

- 1) The 'DAC' reports are issued as of the date indicated on the Document and are subject to these Terms, which may be modified from time to time. In the event of any conflict between these Terms and contents printed on the Document, these Terms and condition control and supersede. Updates to these Terms will be posted on this website (www.dacinternational.in). Please return to the website at any time to ensure that you have the latest version of these Terms and Conditions.
- 2) DAC laboratory has no financial interest in the Gem Stone(s) and diamond(s), whether mounted or un-mounted, described in the Document, other than the fee it receives for its services. The DAC Laboratory report is not a guarantee, valuation or appraisal.
- 3) If the Document is altered in any way, it is automatically void and may not be relied upon for any purpose whatsoever.
- 4) Stone Weights and Counts are purported by the client.
- 5) The Document contains a description, physical and optical properties of the Gemstone(s) or diamond(s) based upon the application of the grading techniques, testing procedures, and equipment available to and used by DAC laboratory at the time of its examination. The results of any other examinations performed on the gemstone(s) or diamond(s) may differ depending upon when, how, and by whom the gemstone is examined, and may differ in the future as a result of changes and improvements in examination techniques and equipment's, as well as changes in the condition of the gemstone(s) or diamond(s), including those caused by ordinary wear and tear or artificial treatments, enhancements, or processes intended to alter the characteristics of the gemstone(s) or diamond(s) .The Gemstone(s) or diamond(s) has been examined using technology and equipment available to and used by DAC laboratory as of the date of the Document.

6) Any client trademarks, logos, or patent information are included on a Report at client's request and are merely for information and marketing purposes only. DAC Laboratory claims no right, title, or interest in, or liability for, the use of such marks, logos, or patent information.

7) DAC laboratory provides the Report for a small fee compared to the present and potential value of the Diamond only because the Report is subject to the liability limitations and disclaimers set forth here, and the limitations described in the agreements by which the Document is made, all of which extend to the client for whom the Document was prepared and to every other person to whom the Document is distributed or shown.

8) DAC laboratory does not independently verify the validity, enforceability, scope, or applicability of any client trademarks, logos, or patents. Any questions regarding a client trademark, logo, or patent should be directed to the client.

9) The parties recognise that the options may reasonably vary regarding the characteristics covered in the report. And hence DAC, or any member of its staff, at any time, may not be held responsible for any discrepancy which may result from the application of other grading methods.

10) The client trademark, logo, or patent information in the report shall not be deemed to imply any sponsorship by, endorsement of, or affiliation between DAC laboratory and the client, or representation by DAC Laboratory that the client has valid, enforceable rights in any such mark, logo, or that any listed patents are applicable to the item described in the Document.

11) The Goods are analysed in accordance with the 'International grading standards' as amended from time to time. In order to be accepted for Services, the Goods must be cleaned thoroughly in order to remove dirt and oil in diamonds and gemstones, as the results may differ and hence DAC, or any member of its staff, may not be held responsible for any discrepancy which may result from the report.
